NW It's a good place to build a career. Huge amount of opportunity to do different things. We're a big business, which means that naturally brings variety, but actually really encouraged to embrace your learning and your development so you're genuinely able to move into different functions and different roles. And not all companies actually deliver on that. Personally I've seen it happen in my time in Unilever, and I know the conversations I'm having, that I'm having for my future are around, give me the opportunity to grow and develop and if I wasn't getting those positive messages myself, I couldn't advocate our business to other people.
